

Call for concepts

Do you have an idea for a clinical trial in mothers and babies health?
Do you want to take your idea to the next level?

Our ON TRACK Network Trial Development Workshop can help turn your idea into reality.

This workshop brings together research teams and experts to facilitate the development of promising collaborative, multicentre, investigator-led clinical trial concepts. Your research team will have the opportunity to pitch your concept to a diverse, multidisciplinary audience, including consumers. You will receive input from faculty members with expertise in statistics, clinical trial design, funding, consumer opinion, and Māori health research. Using feedback from a mock funding review panel, you will then be able to devise an action plan for developing your concept into active research.

We are happy to consider concepts across all areas of mothers and babies health but would love to see some ideas from our recent national ON TRACK

Research Prioritisation Project. Click here for further information about the project.

To submit a concept for consideration for the workshop, complete the application form available on our website: ontrack.perinatalsociety.org.nz and email it to: ontracknetwork@auckland.ac.nz
